

Amateurs Plan "Get Together" Meeting---Secure Grotto Band for Benefit Game

YOUNG BOYS BRING LEAGUES TOGETHER AT INFORMAL TALK

Plans to Have Get-Together Banquet At Which All Opinions Are Wanted.

WILL ASK EVERY CIRCUIT

Expects Co-operation From Interests Not Under Association as Well as Members.

By BRYAN MORSE.
Washington amateur baseball managers, presidents, and officers of the various leagues may be called together in a "Get-Together" banquet in the near future if the plans of Robert H. Young, president of the Amateur Association carry. The banquet is to be informal and all views of the amateur situation will be aired for the purpose of bettering the game here and getting all the side lights possible on the situation.

The idea was conceived by President Young, who will get in touch with the various amateur association league heads, those not under the association and those who have any interest in any way in amateur baseball whether they are members of a league or not.

"I think an informal dinner or banquet or smoker would be for the best interests of the sport here," said President Young today. "We want all the opinions possible on the amateur baseball situation. It has been outlined that all the amateurs under the association and the other league teams and presidents would greatly help if there were co-operation from all sides. In view of this, we want to help each other in every possible way, and no better means could be found than to get them all together in a banquet where they could talk informally."

President Young expects his idea to meet with a hearty response, and he will get in touch with the various amateur associations in order to bring up the idea at the next association meeting.

President John Irving, of the Catholic Church League, today announces the schedule of the circuit which will run up to the middle of August. The league has proved more than popular to date, and is expected to draw well during the remainder of the season. Interests have been shown in the amateur circuit, and has been as keen as could be expected.

The dates of the league follow:

"Zek" Blundon, who made such a reputation in the box for Business High School last spring, continues to deliver for the Advent in the East Washington Sunday School circuit. Blundon pitched against fifth yesterday, winning a 14 to 6 contest.

The Marines flailed the life out of the Library of Congress team in the Government League yesterday, winning by 16 to 2. No less than twenty-two hits were recorded by the Marines.

Whitney and Brightwood played a great game in the Northwest Sunday School League yesterday. Whitney coming through in the final inning for a run and winning by 4 to 2.

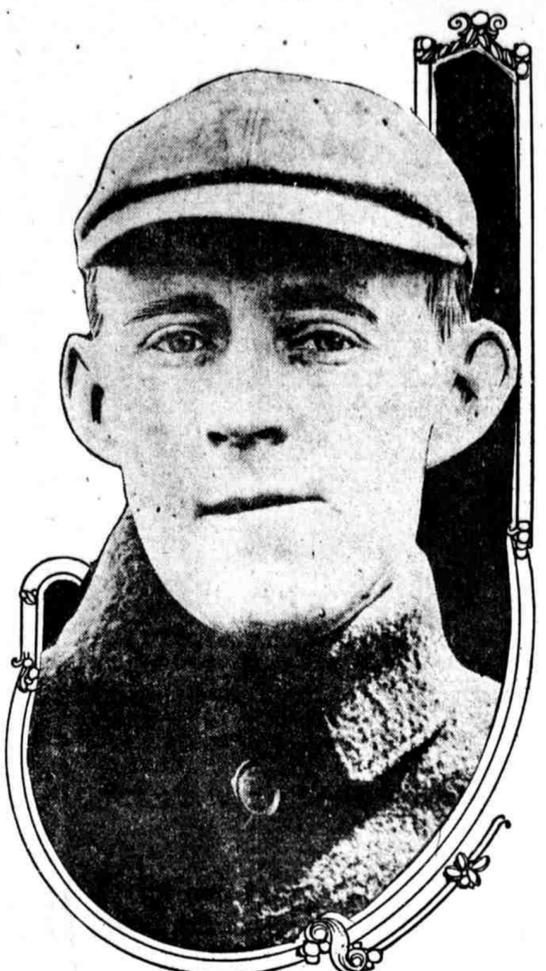

St. Teresa gained a lead in the first inning of the battle with the Congress Heights, and managed to hold it throughout seven innings. The final score, 8 to 1, in favor of St. Teresa was a big help. Mike Cantwell seems to be the only winning twirler for the Saints.

Ryan's pitching for Treasury was a bit too much for the Interior nine yesterday in the Departmental. Ryan allowed three hits, fanned three and cut loose with a wild pitch. He was effective with men as only eleven Interior players were marooned during the nine innings of play. Treasury came through with a run in the final game, and landed a 3-to-2 win.

St. Vincent's and St. Joseph's gave the Holy Name League fans a good game yesterday. St. Vincent's won by 7 to 6, coming through with three runs in the last half of the ninth, after St. Joseph's had led by two runs.

W. and E. Brewer, "Polly" and "Six" are known by the Interior League fans, and, in fact, practically all followers of amateur baseball here, contributed practically all of the hitting for the Congress Heights team yesterday. They made five between them in seven times at the bat for a total of six bases.

Fierce Fighting Seen In Baseball War Arena

Faber Features Chicago-St. Louis Encounter, While Hans Lobert and Johnny Evers Are Heroes In Double Skirmish at Polo Grounds.

By KIRK C. MILLER.
It was a strenuous day in the Eastern and Western arena of baseball warfare. The code messages read much like those emanating from Europe. In the American League the Red Sox drove back the Yankees in a ten-inning skirmish, which was precipitated at Fenway Field, Boston, and, consequently, Bill Carrigan's army is today safely entrenched in second place. The war office at Boston declares the score to be 4 to 2, and this is not denied at New York. As a result of the long battle, Bill Donovan's battalion has been forced to retreat to fifth place in the league standing, and today they will be attacked at that position by the Griffmen.

Those White Sox, who are occupying the foremost position in the Western hemisphere of this little baseball altercation, continued their success at the expense of a division of the army headed by Branch Rickey, of St. Louis, Mo. General Rickey retired under a 4 to 2 fire, which lasted throughout nine innings of fierce fighting.

One brave soldier, whose name is Faber, proved the real hero of Chicago's complete annihilating of St. Louis. It is the fourteenth time since the outbreak of activities last April that Faber has played the role of chief rescuer, and this time the title goes to him for defensive and offensive play.

Faber had in his cartridge belt the kind of ammunition which the Brooklynites games most anywhere the sport is indulged in. After the White Sox had put themselves two runs to the good in the fourth, when two men had walked and straightway shot a sixling triple where the Brooklyn sliders were chagrined had its effect for the winning runs were forced across, although the conquering contributor of the hit failed to score himself.

Moving across the frontier to the National League, the developments of the day and the Giants and Braves to have broken even in their two impacts. By winning the first game, 3 to 2, the Giants were permitted to adorn fifth place for one hour and fifty minutes, the duration of the second game, which went to the Braves by a 6 to 0 score.

The Philadelphia depressed the Brooklyn Dodgers to the extent of 8 runs to 4, and regained command of the second position. Meanwhile, the Brooklynites regained the cellar. The Reds and Cubs didn't play and the Cardinals and Pirates broke even.

Some few brief dispatches regarding those Giant-Braves games have been received. Honus Lobert, well hoarded with spindles and bandages to support a shattered rib, forced a single through the center of the Polo Grounds during the very dying minutes of the ninth inning, and with his hit the victorious tallies, two in number, trickled across the goal plate. The score had been 2 to 1, and Lobert's timely blow shifted it to 3 to 2.

But wait—there was a second game at the Polo Grounds and in it another veteran who has not been seen in the limelight of b. b. for two or three moons proved to be the General Sherman of the Congress Heights team yesterday. We refer to Johnny Evers, erstwhile captain of the Braves, whose home run and general brilliance gave his team the stigma of victory.

In the first inning Evers made a sin-

TODAY'S SPORT TORIAL

By LOUIS A. DOUGHER.

NEW YORK, June 30.—"The Yankees are sure first division finishers." That's what you hear on every side in the big town and the fans really believe it. To a man from Washington it is not the most pleasant stuff in the world, either, because with the Yanks finishing in the first division, the Griffmen will necessarily have to wind up in the last section. But all Broadway really thinks that Bill Donovan has a certain finisher in the first quarter.

Bill Donovan is more popular here just now than the mayor of New York. Indeed, thousands never heard of the mayor, but it is doubtful if a hundred can be found without some knowledge of Smiling William, boss of the Yankees. The spectacular performances of the Yankees in most of their home games have endeared the team to New Yorkers, particularly with the Giants in a sad slump. New York dearly loves a winner and the Yanks have steadily won games while the Giants were losing. Therefore, New York is turning out in droves to see Bill Donovan's boys. The metropolis is beginning to warm up to the American League for the first time since Clark Griffith led his team to within a game of the championship back in 1904. This may be a bad year in major league baseball, but it is hardly likely that the New York club will lose much money. The fans are sticking with Bill Donovan. They feel that he has delivered where Frank Chance, a man with a greater reputation, fell down badly. And New York dearly loves a winner.

Give the Yankees a few steady pitchers and they will worry the life out of the Griffmen, and Bill Donovan is beginning to collect pitchers. His acquisition of Bob Shawkey, Connie Mack's righthander, is certain to make the Yanks more impressive. Ray Caldwell and Ray Fisher are the only reliable twirlers on Donovan's original staff, but Shawkey is sure to make another. Let Donovan obtain one good southpaw and his quartet of flingers will be quite good enough for a team of the run-getting ability of the Yankees.

There is much criticism here of Ed Sweeney and Leslie Vinamaker, the experts believing both veteran catchers too heavy on their feet to be of much use to the team. Though unofficial, the tip is out that Donovan is after a faster catcher now connected with another American League team. The identity of the pitcher in mystery, but he will shortly be named, if the deal goes through. Doc Cook's failure as an outfielder has led Donovan to go after an outfielder also now playing with an American League club. It is expected that the addition of these two players will put the Yankees in the race, though few believe they have much chance to beat out the White Sox for the banner. However, the very fact that Col Ruppert is letting Bill Donovan spend money for needed players warms the cockles of New York's hearts.

The fact that Donovan is using caution in signing players is assisting in his campaign for popularity. New York has seen enough of Arthur Irwin.

Keep your lamps on those White Sox, and don't forget that they are hitting well enough to give them the leadership of the league with the bat. Last year the Sox reached the mark of 239, three points better than their 1913 average. This season, though, they are out in front, and show no signs of quitting. With strong pitchers, the Sox ought to breeze through this league. The Tigers have maintained a fast clip, owing to the hitting of the wrecking crew, Kavanagh, Cobb, Crawford, and Veach, but the Tigers have begun to show their real form, and when their pitchers all begin to show what they really can do, the rub outfit ought to be able to challenge Howard's team for the leadership. Meanwhile, the White Sox are traveling Howard's team for the leadership. Meanwhile, the White Sox are traveling Howard's team for the leadership.

Fining a player, even a Helme Zimmerman, for failure to run out a bunt will make friends for Roger Bresnahan. Not that Zimmerman is considered a major league player, but he is a very good player. The very best of the league is that it is made up of the very best players to be found in all the country. Players drawing fancy salaries ought to prove every day that they are entitled to their money. Looking on the bright side, the Sox have begun to show their real form, and when their pitchers all begin to show what they really can do, the rub outfit ought to be able to challenge Howard's team for the leadership. Meanwhile, the White Sox are traveling Howard's team for the leadership.

Mack Will Not Dispose Of Stock in Athletics

Syndicate Reported Ready to Purchase Club—Manager Refuses to Confirm Rumors Concerning Release of Players.

BOSTON, June 30.—Persistent rumors to the effect that Connie Mack's holdings in the Athletics were for sale and that he had named his price to a syndicate which has the approval of Ben Johnson, president of the American League, were emphatically denied by the manager of the Mackmen when he arrived in Boston this morning. Mack also refused to confirm or deny reports that several of his players are to be traded or sold.

The report that Mack was ready to sell out his holdings in the club gained circulation about a week ago, when Ben Johnson went to Philadelphia to confer with the owners of the Athletics. It is said the league officials are dissatisfied with the way Mack is breaking up his club, and that there were certain men interested in the league who were eager to take over Mack's stock.

"My interest in the Athletics is not for sale at any price," said Mack. "But any time my partners are dissatisfied with the way I'm running my club, or the American League does not like what I'm doing and wants to drive me out of the city, they can do it easily enough. But I will be a case of driving me out, for I don't intend to quit. I'm here to stay, and I'll win just as sure as I've won before."

"There is one thing certain, however, I'm not going to let anyone tell me how to run my ball club. There have been all kinds of rumors started and I have been kept busy answering telegrams and telephone calls about my players and my team. I asked valuers on Shawkey and that is how the news leaked out. Today I saw a report about Jack Barry. I want to say right here that I do not intend to tell anybody anything about Barry, or any other member of the team is to be traded or sold, but I'm not going to admit it or deny it. Even my partners in the club or the officials of the American League do not know what I'm going to do and what my plans for the future are, and they are not going to know it, either. You can make that as strong as you like."

From all accounts Connie has planned a regular house-cleaning, and when he is through there will be only one or two of the regulars left on the team. Jack Barry is said to be booked for sale, but Manager Mack said that Barry would play with the Athletics in Boston today. Jack Lapp is another who, it is said, will be traded or sold, and that Manager Mack has had two good offers for his veteran backstop. Neither report could be confirmed through Mack last night.

The Athletics' manager was thoroughly wrought up over the rumors about his club, and the fact that the team continues to lose is not helping matters. Jack Barry, who has been out of the game several days nursing a sore hand, received in sliding into second base, joined the team at Boston today and will play against the Red Sox. It would not be surprising if Barry was released, despite Manager Mack's refusal to deny the report.

From all accounts Barry from Holy Cross and developed him the same way he did Collins, who came from Columbia. Mack has several young players either under contract or ready to be given a try-out, so that any time a new face appears in the Athletics' line-up it will be no surprise to the fans.

GROTTO BAND WILL PLAY AT BIG GAME

Kallipolis, No. 15, M. O. V. P. E. R., Is to Furnish Music For Masonic Benefit Contest

Kallipolis Grotto, No. 15, M. O. V. P. E. R., will furnish the music for the Tempelute-Outlander game which will be played at American League Park Saturday for the benefit of the Eastern Star Home. Prof. E. M. Camper will be in charge of the Grotto Band, and his entire musical troupe will be on hand to make the occasion as enjoyable as possible, should the game lack interest at any moment.

One of the largest throngs which ever patronized a benefit event in Washington is expected to go to the Georgia avenue inclosure Saturday to see the members of the Masonic fraternity cavort around the greensward. The Masonic game has come to be looked upon as a fixture now, and many who remember seeing their favorite race around the paths one year ago will appear at the grounds again this season.

The committeemen in charge of the Masonic game are endeavoring to make the affair as attractive as possible in order to draw an even larger crowd than that which marked the success of the event one year ago. "Mike" Donald is captain of the Tempelute while the Outlanders are being piloted by O. W. Roake.

FALCONER TO MEET HOWARD IN FINALS

Former Western Boy Defeats Seldon, of Central, While Georgetown Lad Loses.

Harold Falconer, a former Western High School boy, and D. Howard of St. Luke's School, Philadelphia, won their way into the final round in the Junior District championship singles in tennis tournament now in progress on the Dumbarton Club courts.

Falconer defeated Harold Seldon, the Central High School cracker, by 7-5, 6-3, in the best tennis displayed so far. Falconer was behind 4 to 1 in the first set, but placed better and set too hot a pace, taking the first set. Howard was forced to a three-set match for a win in defeating Marcus Miller, the Georgetown freshman. Howard won after losing the first set, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

The finals will be played tomorrow at 10 o'clock, while the matches in the semi-final round in doubles will be run off.

Falconer and Baker won their way to the semi-finals in doubles by defeating Hagner and Miller, and will meet Seldon and LeFevre tomorrow.

Play in today's matches follows:
Singles, fourth round, Howard defeated McVay, 6-2, 6-4; Seldon defeated Brock, 6-3, 6-2; Falconer defeated Williams, 6-3, 6-0; final round, Howard defeated Miller, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2; Falconer defeated Seldon, 7-5, 6-3.

Sam McVey Defeats Langford in Twelve

BOSTON, June 30.—Sam McVey was given the decision over Sam Langford at the end of their twelve-round bout at the Atlas A. A. here last night. Both men fought a slashing bout for heavyweights, and the decision was received with hisses as the majority of the fans thought that the worst of the local man should have been handed was a draw. McVey used a left hook to advantage, and his right eye optics nearly closed at the end of the bout, while his left eye was out of commission early in the battle.
